

Q2 Learning Hires Former Chief Learning Officer Christina Keener

Falls Church, VA. July 27, 2010. Q2 Learning, LLC, a leading provider of social learning solutions, announced today that Christina Keener, former CLO of CNA Insurance, will join the company as the practice leader for organizational development. With more than 25 years of experience in organizational, learning, and leadership development Ms. Keener will be a welcome addition to the Q2 team.

Ms. Keener's primary responsibilities will be to build Q2's consulting practice in change management, implementation, and leadership development, promoting Q2 Learning's philosophy of delivering smarter social learning solutions to its worldwide clients.

"We are extremely pleased to have recruited an executive of Ms. Keener's caliber," said John Darling, co-founder and manager of strategic relationships. "Ms. Keener brings a tremendous track record and was among the first C-level executives to embrace full-featured social learning solutions."

Ms. Keener has more than 25 years of global experience in the areas of organizational development, learning, and talent management. She was the Senior Vice President and Chief Learning Officer for CNA Insurance. In this role she was responsible for all organizational development, learning, and knowledge management across the organization. She was also the Vice President of Internal Consulting for Bank of America, and led the organizational consulting practice for Right Management Consultants as a Vice President in addition to having her own successful consulting practice.
